

George Mundorf is retired. He feels this is the only positive thing that comes from aging. That and reduced-fare subway cards. He graduated Lafayette College with a degree in Economics in 1970, and received his MBA from the Johnson School of Management at Cornell University in 1972. After his initial stint in the National Guard, he spent the next thirty-five years as a merchant, working at Saks Fifth Avenue, Tiffany & Co, and Gracious Home. His responsibilities included Buying, Merchandising, Opening New Stores, Budgeting, and, after a New Broom swept into Saks after 25 years, sales. For the past fifty years, he has been a collector - walking that fine line between hoarding and collecting beautifully. His collections, the sale of which provided financial assistance when necessary, have appeared in several books. He has co-written four books on Doll House Furniture from the 1930s. He has marched across the Brooklyn Bridge for Gay Marriage Rights and is a member of SAGE, an organization for gay seniors,
